Artist Statement

This design was created as a joint initiative by three students during the Art Activism Spring Break class. Bentleah Dunham created the butterfly wings, is from Mi'Kmaq and Nisga'a First Nations and is a student at Rick Hansen Secondary. Skyler Hazelman created the sun and is an Indigenous student from Robert Bateman Secondary. Ava Gardner created the dandelions, is Métis, and attends ASIA Sumas.

“The butterfly wings in our design represent freedom, beauty, and change. The sun symbolizes life-giving energy, power, and unity. The dandelions reflect resilience, hope, transformation, and the power of making wishes.”

Ava shared about their joint experience of participating in Spring Break camp, “It felt more like a community than a school. The camp brought people together, and the classroom space was calm, welcoming, and judgment-free. We built strong relationships in a short amount of time. We would love the opportunity to return to the camp, and we believe anyone who has the chance to attend should take it.”
